

Wat Rong Khun

Description

Originally in a bad state of repair at the end of the 20th century, the Wat Rong Khun, or White Temple, was rebuilt and funded entirely by the local artist and architect Chalermchai Kositpipat. A few years later, in 2014, an earthquake struck the region and the Wat. Upon learning that the temple was structurally unharmed, Kositpipat announced that he would devote his whole life to maintain the historical temple complex.
